

A new article from Sophos, a leading security company in the areas of viruses and other computer security issues, states "Beware of Googling (or indeed Yahooing or Binging or using any other internet search engine) for information about something called "Facebook Fan Check Virus", as you're likely to end up on a website hosting malicious code."

Apparently hackers are setting up fake websites for this particular search trend in order to install malicious software on your computer so they can grab your credit card details. See the article here:

http://www.sophos.com/blogs/gc/g/2009/09/07/facebook-fan-check-virus.